
Subject: Re: Suggestion towards new attributes and sub element for <doors>
Posted by Joerg von Lingen on Fri, 03 Aug 2018 03:28:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

see changeset [809] (<https://trac.railml.org/changeset/809/railML>) and ticket #335 (<https://trac.railml.org/ticket/335>)

Dr.-Ing. Jörg von Lingen - Rollingstock scheme coordinator

Torben Brand wrote on 03.07.2018 12:45:

- > Dear Dirk and RS community,
- >
- > I retract my suggestion for @minimumStopTimeDoors. We might
- > model it as a nor: extention if it is needed after all. I
- > ask for all other suggestions to be implemented in
- > railML2.4RS. I think we should not use the element term also
- > in the attribute term, as this is redundant. For example use
- > @openingTime and not @doorOpeningTime under element
- > <doors>.
- > I thank Dirk for the extensive description for the
- > composition of the regular stop time. We model similar, but
- > not quite the same. This as in Norway the departure
- > procedure starts 20 seconds before the published departure.
- > So that in Norway published departure is equal to actual
- > departure in a situation with no delay. We will come back to
- > this issue at a later stage.
- >
- >
- >