
Subject: Re: [railML3.1|Simple Example] Errors
Posted by christian.rahmig on Mon, 06 Aug 2018 14:04:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dear Felix,

again I am little bit confused about the source of data you used.
However, I am going to investigate on this and let you know about my findings.

Best regards
Christian

Am 06.07.2018 um 14:58 schrieb Felix Prüter:

- > Dear all,
- > validating the Simple Example xml for railML v3.1 raised a
- > list of errors:
- > elements called *Ref (like platformRef) are used but not
- > allowed by the schema (the corresponding element is written
- > w/o the Ref suffix) etcsSignal (element of signal) should be
- > etcs conforming to the schema speedSignal (element of
- > signal) is not allowed by the schema at all, although
- > mentioned in the corresponding html documentation in the SVN
- > [1] --> clash between xsd and UML model / documentation?
- > [1] <https://svn.railml.org/railML3/tags/railML-3.1-beta>
- >
- > Kind regards

--
Christian Rahmig - Infrastructure scheme coordinator
railML.org (Registry of Associations: VR 5750)
Phone Coordinator: +49 173 2714509; railML.org: +49 351 47582911
Altplauen 19h; 01187 Dresden; Germany www.railml.org
