

Hello,

according to ticket #126, the following attributes are missing:

- * connInfo (text)
- * reason (commercial/operational)
- * anyAttribute

If there is no further input, I would implement it this way.

Kind regards,

Joachim

Susanne Wunsch wrote:

- >
- > Hello,
- >
- > during our last meeting in Karlsruhe there raised the "Request for
- > enhancement" for clearer 'connection' elements in the 'ocp' context.
- >
- > This topic was already touched by some threads in the forum.
- >
- > The term "connection" is very misleading. In this context it is meant
- > for passengers/goods to change from one train to another. German term:
- > "Anschluss"
- >
- > The 'circulation' branch serves for any vehicle connections/bindings.
- >
- > There is currently no provision for staff connections/bindings. They
- > may be modelled as "passenger connections", that must be met in any
- > case.
- >
- > For one 'ocpTT' there may be multiple 'connection' elements.
- >
- > Each refers to a train.
- >
- > (train or trainPart?)
- >
- > Additional, there may be minimal and/or maximal connection times.
- >
- > (maybe we need an equivalent transfer time matrix in the
- > infrastructure branch, regarding platform distances)
- >

- > The 'connOperation' attribute shows the kind of dependency between the
- > current train part and the referenced train/train part:
- >
- > * none
- > * meet
- > * isWaitingFor
- > * isExpectedBy
- > * ...
- >
- > Do these attributes fit for all "connection" purposes? Do we need
- > further attributes for some reason?
- >
- > Does somebody provide a short but complete example (as XML file)?
- > (Joachim?)
- >
- > Any hints, questions, remarks, comments, +/-1, welcome. :-)
- >
- > Kind regards...
- > Susanne
- >

--

----- posted via PHP Headliner -----
